

Who's on the ballot, and when do we vote?

Have you ever heard of J. Quinn Brisben? How about Bo Gritz?

If you take a ballot from the Independent Voters Party in the March Presidential Primary, you could be voting for one of those two candidates for president.

The names are among eight on the ballot for the Independent Voters Party. The party has fielded enough signatures to require a ballot in the primary.

Other names on the Independent ballot, all running for president, are Robert J. Smith, Darcy G. Richardson, Erik Thompson, Howard Phillips, Earl F. Dodge, and Michael S. Levenson.

The use of the name Independent Voters Party is confusing for some voters who may have been identifying themselves as independent. Because the new party is using that word as its name, voters who do not wish to be listed as members of a party must declare themselves as "unenrolled."

Traditionally, many voters will go through the year listed as independent, and then on election day, vote whichever ballot they choose. After the election, they then fill out a card to again be listed as "independent." Those voters this year face the possibility that if they use the wrong word, they could end up registered in a party. The problem would not surface until the voter attempted to take a party ballot in a future primary. If a voter were listed as being in the "independent" party, they could not take a ballot from any party other than the Independent Voters Party.

Democrats

Anyone paying attention to the television during the past month or two has to know the five leading candidates for President on the Democratic side: Tsongas, Clinton, Brown, Harkin and Kerrey. When Democrats close the curtain in the voting machine on March 10, however, there will be a slate of nine names to choose from. The list starts out with two names which are both familiar, if for widely different reasons: Ralph Nader and Lyndon H. LaRouche. Another name that voters might recognize is Eugene McCarthy. The ninth name on the Democratic ballot is Larry

Agran.

Also on the ballot is a contest for Democratic State Committeeman, pitting incumbent Stephen J. O'Leary of North Reading against Kenneth Murphy of Ipswich. The district is the First Essex and Middlesex, which conforms to the state senate district represented by Sen. Bob Buell. The district runs from Cape Ann to Wilmington.

The sole candidate for Democratic State Committeewoman is Shirley Raynard of Middleton, the incumbent.

The slate for the Democratic Town Committee lists 28 names for 35 seats, guaranteeing all a seat.

The 28 candidates are: Michael Donovan, Mary L. Cunningham, Michael McCoy, Joan DE. Donovan, John C. Holloway Jr., James F. Banda, Beverly Berrigan, Dorothy A. Butler, John Gillis, Jay Donovan, James R. Miceli, Patricia F. Duggan, Lillian Brown, Nancy

Steen, Rocco DePasquale, Alice Hooper, George Hooper, Robert Cain, Simon Cutter, Christine Murphy, Michael Murphy, Robert Peterson, Aldo Caira, Nancy Neward, Susan Donovan, James Doucette, Anna Visconti and Elaine Hachey.

Republicans

With only three presidential candidates, the Republican ballot might seem simpler, but that does not mean it is less interesting. The incumbent is listed third, under Patrick J. Buchanan and David Duke. It seems that President Bush lost the lottery for order of placement.

There are two candidates for Republican State Committeeman, Howard P. Blatchford of Gloucester and Dale C. Jenkins of Boxford.

Unopposed for Republican State Committeewoman is incumbent Nancy J. Luther of Topsfield.

The candidates for Republican Town Committee total 14, with 35 seats open. They are Teri Bakewell, William G. Hooper, Lillian Hupper, Earl Hupper, Bradford Jackson, Ruth Kitchener, Jean Lefavour, Gary Phillips, Stephen Phillips, Lulu Sanborn, John Sanborn, Thomas Siracusa, Darryl Tripp and Edwin Tripp III.

Olympic moment

The Class of 2004 had their first award ceremony at the Kinder-Olympics recently at the Woburn Street School. Students competed in events such as Nimble Numbers, Pencil Pumping, and Olympic Village Block Construction. Lauren Mallon and Maria Sorrentino were the flag bearers in the procession into the cafeteria for the awards ceremony.

Sewer rate hikes: No end in sight

Wilmington's sewer charges to the MWRA have gone up 317 percent since 1985, said Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hull Monday night. Hull spoke before the Board of Selectmen in an update on the town's sewer situation.

"The sorry thing is, there's no end in sight," said Hull, speaking of the projected increases.

In 1985, the town paid $285,000. In 1989 it was $489,000. In 1993 it will be $1.5 million.

Hull is the town's representative on the MWRA advisory board, a position which carries no voting power. Hull gave the selectmen a detailed explanation of how the rate formula is established. One portion of the charges are based on the cost of operations. The other is based on debt service.

In both areas, Wilmington is paying more than its fair share, he said. "It's really a double whammy," he said.

Cost of operations has two components, (identified) point source and non-point source (unidentified). Hull said that non-point source material, such as infiltration from leaks, makes up 50 percent of the material in the system. Wilmington, having relatively new pipes, contributes little to this problem but pays for it along with all other cities and towns.

The real critical issue for Wilmington is debt service. With the MWRA in the midst of a $6 billion improvement program to clean up Boston Harbor, there is substantial debt incurred.

Where this becomes unfair to Wilmington is in that the town is assessed based on its current population, not on its sewer users. Even though only about 10 percent of town residents are on the sewer system, the town must pay the debt component based on the full population.

Hull said that the MWRA dilemma on this issue is that they are building a system to take care of sewage needs for the next 15 to 20 years. Because this will benefit people who tie in in the future, the MWRA is assessing for population. If the MWRA were to assess future users as they tied in, they never would, Hull said.

The town's assessment would drop by about $600,000 if the MWRA were to bill debt service based on actual users instead of population.

The likelihood of this changing, though, is slim. Boston and inner cities have weighted votes on the MWRA board, giving towns like Wilmington very little power.

Hull said that a rate study board has been set up. One change that has been discussed is metering sewage. Currently all sewage is estimated, based on water consumption. Hull said that he believes there are meters in place in the sewers, but that they may not be turned on until 1997 — or maybe not at all.

Selectman Mark Haldane said the Water and Sewer Commissioners has undertaken a feasibility study to see if it would be possible for the town to break from the MERA and create its own treatment facility, or a regional one. He quoted on commissioner as saying it was possible that a treatment plant could pay for itself in as little as four years.

The one extra benefit that Wilmington does have is a dumping station, where trucks can dump material pumped from local residential septic systems.

Selectman Chester Bruce said he hoped the town would capitalize on this dumping station, charging trucks from out of town $100 a load to dump.

He said that short of a lawsuit, the town had no way to control anything with the MWRA. "It's ridiculous for us to be paying for Boston users," he said.

A lawsuit filed by the town of Ashland against the MWRA was mentioned. Wilmington had previously declined to join in the suit, Haldane said, because of the lack of chances for success.

He asked if a pullout from the MWRA would require legislation. The answer given was yes.

Selectmen did have some good news. Haldane said that water rates have remained stable since 1989. The town operates its own water system.

Selectman Robert Doucette said that the first water treatment plant is paid for, and the second was nearly paid for.

Sold for taxes

The assets of the Farmer and the Del were auctioned off last Friday at the Colonial Park Mall. Seized by the state for taxes, the deli was closed in January. The fixtures and contents of the store were bought for $47,000 by Bob Katsikis of Stellos Restaurant, who had already secured a lease on the premises. The truck was bought by Dick Fudge of D&D Lock for $3000.

Wilmington selectmen on Monday night voted in support of the Teamsters.

The support came in the form of a resolution urging the Purity Supreme grocery chain to reverse its decision on the closing of its Billerica warehouse.

Treatment continues for children burned in '91 Dracut fire

by Bill Conlon

A Las Vegas night will be held on Friday, February 28, to benefit the Nawn and Labrie kids, but people have been asking -- How are they doing?

Little Ashley and Melissa Nawn, and Michael Labrie, were terribly burned in a fire on September 14,
1991, at the Nawn home on Island Pond Road in Dracut. The cause of the fire is immaterial. The effect is still devastating, however.

Ashley was burned over 88 percent of her body, while Melissa had burns covering 82 percent, according to Gail Nawn, their mother.

Ashley is two years old.

Melissa is just three and a half.

Michael Labrie endured the most, with burns over 90 percent of his body, Mrs. Nawn said. Michael is still at the Shriners Burn Center in Boston, almost six months later. He may be coming home soon.

Ashley and Melissa came home on December 30, Gail said, as part of the WellMark rehabilitation program. The alternative was sending the girls to a rehabilitation hospital, she said, which would be harder on them and the family.

Ashley and Melissa, she said, have doctors, nurses, physical therapists and occupational therapists visiting them at home on a daily basis. One of the nurses was visiting during a telephone interview for this story, and Gail didn't have time to say too much. Gail stays home to care for the girls, she said, noting that the two are "up and around" the house, and are not bedridden.

Donations began pouring in after the fire, Gail said, although she was unable to give an exact amount. For awhile it seemed fundraisers were being held almost daily.

"We're thankful for what everyone has done," she said, noting that a single Walk-a-Thon raised over $28,000 for the kids. The Shawmut bank handles the account, she said.

But there will be plenty of cost to come, Gail noted. Care at Shriners Burn Center is provided free, but collateral expenses such as travel and lodging, and the countless little expenses such as home health care products, can quickly add up.

Ashley and her sister will require reconstructive surgery for years to come, with the next surgery set for March, her mother said.

But there were some things that Gail didn't want to talk about, and her privacy will be respected. She refused to comment about the girls' attitudes, and she would not speak of the fire itself.

"All three kids are doing as well as can be expected," she said. As for herself and her family, she simply said, "You do what you have to."

The Las Vegas night on Friday will run from 7 p.m. to midnight at Ronnie's Steak House, on Nashua Road in Dracut. Sponsors of the event are the Community Service
Committee of the Greater Lowell
Board of Realtors. There will be a $2 charge at the door, or contact any GLBR member for tickets.

WORKING FOR UNCLE SAM

Do you ever wonder just who or what you're working for?
According to the 1991 figures from the Tax Foundation, Mr.
John Q. Average taxpayer had to work 128 days, from January 1 to May 8 to cover all his taxes - federal, state and local. That's three days longer than it took to pay the bill in 1990.

The increase can be blamed on tax boosting effects of the 1990
Tax Act, increases in the wage base for Social Security and Medicare taxes, higher state and local taxes, and a general slowdown in pay and economic growth.

If it's too depressing to look at the annual figures, the day-to-day numbers are a little better. Our same average worker spent two hours and 49 minutes in every eight hour workday last year working to pay his taxes - almost two hours for federal taxes and the rest to cover state and local levies.

CAR INSURANCE ECONOMIES

QUESTION: How can I save money on my car insurance premiums?

ANSWER: Here are some cost saving tips that may help.

1. Consider higher deductibles. This will reduce your cost more than anything else.
2. Don't buy insurance you don't need. Collision coverage on an old car may cost more than it's worth.
3. If a driver leaves your household (especially an under-25 driver), notify your agent. It could lower premiums.
4. Insure all your vehicles under one policy. Most multi-car situations can be insured at lower rates.

Lack of funds could dampen curriculum committee work

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington school officials expect to implement upgraded curriculums in science, health, social studies, math, and language arts sometime this spring. However, a dearth of funds for new texts and supplemental materials could put a damper on three years of work by the local curriculum committee.

According to science teacher Dick DeRosa, who chairs the 11-member committee, the first phase of the five year task is complete. New guidelines for the above five subjects are at the printers and will be distributed to teachers system-wide as soon as possible. The second phase began two weeks ago. Subcommittees were formed to review and improve curriculums in five other subjects such as foreign language and performing and fine arts. The second phase will take two years.

The curriculum committee was formed three years ago by Supt. William Fay in order to assure that teachers in the same grades were covering the same material and moving in the same direction. Those chosen to serve on the committee were principals Paul Fleming, Bob Arsenault, and Dick Gorham; parent representatives Arlene Reidy and Peg Kane; Special Education Director Cleo Fredette; and teachers Dick DeRosa, Ann Mulak, Vita Graham, Cathy Symons, and Joyce Aldrich.

During the first year the committee met on an average of once a month to develop a philosophy of education, to look at which areas needed the most attention, and to develop a mechanism to be followed in the years ahead. Then subcommittees were formed to tackle the first five subject areas. Five to 12 teachers volunteered to serve on each. The teachers, said DeRosa, often met on their own time after school or in the evenings. Sometimes they met on in-service days. While they received no extra salary for their work, many are applying for in-service credits toward their professional development.

The bulk of the work was done by the subcommittees. For two years members reviewed the current guidelines being used in the five subjects, researched curricula and materials used in other school districts, and upgraded, or in the case of elementary social studies, completely rewrote the present curriculum. While the focus at the secondary level was on topical outlines in sequential order, more attention was paid to detail and performance objectives at the elementary level. The most drastic changes, according to DeRosa, came at the primary level.

Kindergarten teacher Vita Graham served on the science subcommittee. As part of their approach, members sent out surveys to teachers of life science, physical science, and earth and space science asking such things as what is needed in the way of supplemental materials and texts. The responses were put on spread sheets then fed into computers.

"We wanted a core curriculum, one that could stand up on its own and not depend on a particular textbook," said Graham, adding that the new curriculum also had to be consistent systemwide.

Ann Mulak, an elementary teacher at the Woburn Street School, chaired the social studies subcommittee. She pointed out the social studies area has needed review for a long time. DeRosa concurred saying the elementary text dates back to 1969. Part of the committee's task was to make the subject relevant to the students' experience.

"Now we have something generated by the teachers and we'll use it," said Mulak who expressed enthusiasm for the rewritten curriculum.

English teacher Cathy Symons served on the language arts subcommittee. Like the social studies group, her committee based its curriculum on behavioral objectives. The first job was to "look at what we're doing under a microscope." Next, members talked to teachers in other towns to get some ideas so they "wouldn't have to reinvent the wheel."

"In my own department there was never agreement. Each person has vested loves and with that comes disagreement over emphasis," Symons said.

The English curriculum is set up sequentially so each year teachers build on what has already been learned. For instance, students in grade six might learn how to write paragraphs then move on to harder assignments like writing essays using a primary source then a secondary source.

"During our meetings we talked about our expectations. This is our curriculum; we have to live with it. It's fluid. We can change something if it doesn't work," Graham said.

"We're the people in the trenches," agreed Mulak. She went on to say that "we have a pretty good feeling about what they (students) can handle developmentally."

The work, to date, has had both its frustrations and rewards.

"There are so many diverse needs of the children. Just having to service those needs is frustrating," said Symons.

Graham said it's impossible to please everyone and that alone is frustrating.

"I know we'll get a lot of feedback. I guess I'm feeling a little guilty; maybe we could have covered more details," she said.

"The curriculum, in some respects, was the easiest part. The hardest part is where do we go from here?" said DeRosa.

Trying to implement the new curriculum may indeed pose the biggest problem, especially with so few funds for new materials and texts. However, say the teachers, that may not be as big a problem as people think since the texts are mainly tools and the main thing is to have the same objectives in all schools.

The committee plans to bring the upgraded curriculum to fellow teachers at in-service workshops and to parents, who will be able to view the changes on large charts posted in each school. DeRosa feels it's imperative to hire someone to oversee the whole effort, someone like a curriculum director, so there's some accountability. The committee will also have to devise a way to assess what is being incorporated and to keep the curriculum up to date from year to year.

"Changes, to be effective, have to be done slowly, but I'm in a hurry to see good things happen here," laughs DeRosa.

Mulak worries that there won't be enough time in the day to work with fellow teachers on the best way to incorporate the new guidelines. She hopes that administrators will set aside more release time to allow for teacher interaction.

"It's tremendously validating to exchange ideas with other professionals," said Mulak.

That exchange of ideas seemed to be the most rewarding part of the committee's task. Though the work took "an incredible amount of time," said Symons, she found it "very stimulating" to talk about policy with fellow professionals.

"The teachers worked on it (the curriculum). They own it. The ownership and pride will make a difference," she added.

"I've really enjoyed being part of a team made up of administrators and directors. It was a very interesting experience working with a cross section of professionals in Wilmington," Graham explained. She went on to add that she now has a better respect for what goes on in other grades and for the administrator's perspective.

DeRosa felt the whole experience has been rewarding for those involved, despite the fact that no remuneration was involved.

"I think they do it because teachers are what they are. They mold children's minds. That's our job. That's what we do. And that's an awesome responsibility," he said.

Lubbers' Brook forum March 19

by Arlene Surprenant
Local residents interested in restoring and preserving Lubbers Brook are invited to attend a public forum on the brook on Thursday, March 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Wilmington Town Hall. The forum is being sponsored by the Wilmington Garden Club.

A panel of distinguished speakers will discuss various issues related to the brook in an effort to heighten public awareness about the importance of Lubbers Brook and other local waterways. Serving on the panel will be Martha Stevenson, a member of the Wilmington League of Women Voters and the Ipswich River Watershed Association; Joan Kimball, Adopt-A-Stream Coordinator for the state Department of Fisheries and Wildlife; Maria Van Dusen, Riverways Coordinator for the Department of Fisheries, Wildlife, and Environmental Law Enforcement; Jay Begin, a crew leader with Massachusetts Mosquito Control; and Gary Mercer, a professional civil engineer with Camp, Dresser, and McKee and vice-chairman of the Wilmington Conservation Commission. In addition, Judi Johnston, founder of the garden club, will officially welcome the public, local activist Anne Linchan will sum up the presentations, and Wilmington's former Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian will serve as moderator.

Following the individual presentations there will be an opportunity for the audience to ask questions. According to Johnston, 70 invitations are being sent out to local officials, conservation members in other communities, and other distinguished guests.

Wilmington school news

Woburn Street School
"Put a Little Love in Your Heart — give a canned good," is the theme at the Woburn Street School for the Month of February. Student Council members have been spearheading a food drive for the new Wilmington Food Commissary. To date 14 boxes of food have been donated. Thank you to all for your generosity.

Fifth grade DARE graduation will be held Thursday, March 5 at 7 p.m. with Officer White. Parents and families are invited to attend.

The Woburn Street School Kinder Olympics were held the week of February 10. Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to the students at an Olympic ceremony on Friday, Feb. 14. Proud parents and family members were in attendance.

Fifth grade math students in Mr. Mirisola's and Mrs. Woods classes are competing once a week in a math league meet. Selected students are given challenging math problems with a trophy for winning team. Science Jeopardy is also enjoyed by these two classes. This activity is designed to challenge the knowledge of science covered during the year.

The fifth grade championship spelling bee will be held Thursday, February 27 in the school cafeteria. The top 25 percent of the fifth grade will participate. The winner will then move on to compete in the Lowell Sun spelling bee.

The next Pac meeting will be held Tuesday March 3 at 9:30 a.m. in the school cafeteria.

IN APPRECIATION

My family and I would like to extend our sincere thanks and gratitude to the Wilmington Police Department and the fire departments of Wilmington, Woburn and Reading. We would like to especially recognize the fine efforts of the Deputy Chiefs Sowyrda, Stewart and Chief Wandell all of whom showed a high degree of professionalism, preventing any injuries and keeping property loss to a minimum. With their combined efforts on the night of February 14, 1992 then contained the fire to one area of the plant. The support of family friends, associates and municipal departments has helped to get us back to full operation. Again I thank you all.

WRA says 'no dough' to selectmen's request

by Captain Larz Neilson
The Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA), last Thursday, voted not to donate any funds to the selectmen of Wilmington. A split vote request had been made by selectmen two weeks previously. The WRA is presently sitting on a balance in excess of $400,000.

Nor did the WRA choose to visit the selectmen, as had been requested. The WRA did vote to send consultant Mike Matt to visit the Town Manager and report on the WRA progress on Main Street plans, and the Burlington Avenue bridge.

The WRA has two projects on which it has been working, with an eye on traffic conditions in, say 2010. The engineering firm of Fay Spafford and Thorndike (FS&T) is preparing the plans.

Last Thursday FS&T discussed traffic flow, intersections, traffic lights, etc., from Wilmington Square to the Tewksbury line. The emphasis was on possible advantages and disadvantages to be found, in the improvement of each intersection.

Wilmington Plaza was the subject of much discussion, with the possibility of improving "internal circulation." The discussion involved possible traffic behind the stores, a "jughead" connection with Benji Way to the skating rink and an improvement on the approaches to the 129 Bridge.

A "slower/safer" traffic flow was seen for the future, but there were no proposals for improving the circulation near Wilmington Ford.

When the plans have been completed there will probably be a part of Main Street with five traffic lanes, plus sidewalks.

The FS&T engineers were instructed to "fine tune" the plans for the next discussion. Some items in their report are to be eliminated but at the same time the WRA wants them to consider improvements to the idea of a "jughead" to Benji Way and the skating rink.

The interesting item, not discussed, was the WRA and the money it has, and which certain persons are proposing that the WRA give away.

Back in the 1960s the late Stanley Webber was appointed to the office of Executive Secretary to the recently formed Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Webber told the Chamber's board of directors of a 30-acre property, southerly of Eames Street, which was not being taxed, except for one item of $500 a year. The directors investigated, and found that Mr. Webber was right.

With the aid of Mr. Webber an article was prepared for the next annual town meeting, to create a Wilmington Redevelopment Authority, under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The town meeting voted in favor.

How did it happen that there was a "mess" in land ownership, south of Eames Street, and how was it

Mr. Webber knew of it?

Back in the days before the Spanish American War a real estate company, called the "Woburn Land and Development Company," or something like that, bought many acres of land in Woburn and Wilmington.

House lots were plotted, 30 feet wide and 70 feet long. There was planning for streets — but the streets were never built.

Real estate salesmen in Boston sold lots for $5 down and the rest "when we catch you."

The property developed into an awful mess, a checkerboard of tiny lots, some abandoned, some passed down in wills. Lots of land were sold and resold, acquiring a "blighted" title, with many owners.

There was nothing in the state laws which allowed a town or city to take such property by eminent domain.

Stanley Webber, a former assessor in Wilmington, knew of the circumstances and knew that nothing could be done.

Former town manager Joseph F. Courtney also knew of that "blighted" land.

Courtney became employed by the Massachusetts state government in several capacities. He was on a "special Commission for Audit of State Needs," and then on a "Commission of State Administration and Finance."

A law was created, and voted in the state legislature which allowed the cities and towns to create an autonomous agency, for the purpose of solving such problems. One person was to be appointed by the state, and four elected by the local voters.

Land "blighted by legal complications" could now be taken by eminent domain, by the town or city in which it was located.

This law went into effect just before Mr. Webber became executive secretary of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

In 1967, when the Authority began its work, Rene LaRivee was the chairman, with other members being Joseph J. Sottile, Raymond McNamara and Robert F. Leahy.

The year 1968 was spent in planning the program to be followed. In 1970 the Commonwealth approved a $200,000 bond, and assembly of the land that was to be in the project. In 1973 the Authority filed the necessary papers in the North Middlesex Registry of Deeds, for taking a 27 acre parcel. The former volcano, south of the 27 acre parcel, was not included in the taking.

By 1975 the land had been assembled, and a road, to be named Jewel Drive was planned. Gas and water mains were installed in 1976. In 1977 the first firms became interested, Harwick Chemicals and JBF Scientific. Altron soon joined, and in 1978 decided it would be double in size.

By 1979 Altron was employing 400 persons. The assessed value on the land and buildings at Jewel Drive was $671,000 compared to the $500 which was paid when the Redevelopment project started.

In 1981 land was sold to Vydal for $68,783.32. At the end of the year the assessed value of the property was $910,250 and taxes being paid amounted to $60,986.75.

In 1985 there were seven firms in the Jewel Drive project, employing 539 people, and paying taxes of $179,200.

In the annual town meeting the town voted unanimously that the WRA should extend its authority to cover Route 129 traffic control and the town center bridge control. The WRA in 1987, after 20 years in existence, could count on taxes being paid to Wilmington of $226,910.65; and began discussions with the Massachusetts DPW, with reference to the Burlington Avenue bridge, and Main Street traffic.

The town, the state and the WRA, in 1989 worked out a plan for replacement of the Burlington Avenue bridge, and anticipated that a major activity for the future would be planning for the bridge. Because of the town's financial emergency in 1989 the WRA voted to give $110,685 to the town.

In 1990 the Authority reported that Jewel Industrial Park was employing 970 persons, with a value of $20,222,900, and paying a total in taxes of $334,486.76. The authority, in its annual report stated it expected a report in 1991 on the impact on re-routing, with reference to closing the Burlington Avenue Bridge. The WRA expected to begin its 25 percent design of the bridge in 1991.

That is all very fine, the reader might say — but where did the WRA get that money to give to the town???

Primarily from the sale of the land, as well as from interest and insurance proceeds.

It is the only Redevelopment Authority in Massachusetts which has refunded money to the state, money which had been advanced under state laws.

But, at this time, because of the coming commitments on the Burlington Avenue bridge and Main Street the WRA cannot "give" away money.

Should the project move forward, the state DPW would rebuild the bridge in Wilmington Center. However, the DPW only does roads and bridges, and cannot deal with adjacent properties. The Redevelopment Authority has the role of planning what the center would be like beyond just roads and bridges.

What part has the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce played?

Of course it was the organization which started the WRA. From time to time some members of the Chamber of Commerce had been members of the WRA, Ray McNamara, for instance, and Nikki Johnson, who was president of the Chamber 10 or 12 years ago, and is now a resident of Florida.

And, of course, it keeps its eye on the WRA, somewhat in the manner of a fond grandparent.

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Congressional redistricting, coinciding with the presidential primaries, will play to a new electoral attitude this year. Voters are increasingly choosing the well-versed candidates above the well-financed. That theory is being justified by former senator Paul Tsongas' success in New Hampshire and the surprisingly strong finish of Jerry Brown in the Maine Caucuses this week.

But whatever happens, the last of the big spenders in politics will be Tewksbury's State Senator Pat McGovern (D-Lawrence). The senator has been licking her liberal chops at the sweet chance to escape her indentured servant status under Bill Bulger.

With an $86,372 balance, despite spending $244,000 on her reelection last year, Pat's PAC kitty is revving up for its next spending binge.

McGovern's finances are a veritable Who's Who in PACs and pols, neither of which, on average, hail from McGovern's district.

Locally, Andrew Zaroulis, brother of Tewksbury Town Counsel Charlie Zaroulis, bellied up $125.00 and Tewksbury resident Robert Belluche was nice enough to drop Pat $125.00. Add Nick Rizzo (Paul Tsongas' fundraiser) for a $250.00 pop and Essex County D.A. Kevin Burke at a modest $100.00.

But that's about as local and "grassroots" as the McGovern money trail goes, and it goes all the way to Baton Rouge, Louisiana where some Liberal Cajun named Steve Hicks plunked $600.00 to his favorite Yank.

Aspiring Congresswoman Pat McGovern's finances read like the social page. There's Diane — judicial nominee — Kotmeyer at $125.00, Sheriff Cliff — fined by the Ethics Commission — Marshall at $100.00, and John — Ex Dukakis Chief — Sasso at $225.00. James Sokolove even made the list at $125.00. Yeah, the one in the same lawyer who runs boob-tube commercials urging you to sue everybody.

But the real McGovern story isn't about hack and ex-hack cash. Instead, it's a list of PAC donations that cover just about every group and profession from cops to chiropractors.

So if you call Pat this week with some ideas on bank reform, be careful. The Co-op Bankers PAC already got her on November 12 with $500.00, to say nothing of the $200.00 from the Mass. Bankers PAC. As for health insurance reform, take your place in line, if you please. There's the Mass Nursing Home PAC ahead of you at $500.00, followed by the Health Plan PAC at another half-a-grand.

Auto insurance reform, anyone? Sorry, pal. The Insurance Agent PAC already stopped by Pat's time on November 12 with a tidy $250.00.

You got $250.00? Frazzled by your heating bill? Don't call Pat. She's on the line with the Bay State Gas PAC with a $250.00 donation from last November on her mind, and she doesn't have call-waiting.

Disturbed by noise from the Caswell Motel on Route 38? Well, don't bother dropping a dime to Pat. The Mass. Hotel-Motel PAC got her last February 28 with $450.00.

As for education, the big reform movement on the State Senate calendar, Pat's favorite PAC carries "its" $500.00 in marching orders right in its name, no explanation needed. The top of the check written out to Pat on November 12 by the Mass. Teacher's Association reads "Vote Teachers PAC."

I'm willing to wager how she votes on tenure reform this year.

The remaining PACs literally won't fit in this space, but they include the Beer Distributors PAC, $500.00, $250.00, Life Insurance PAC, $100, Boston Police Patrolmen's PAC, $500.00, Metro Police PAC, $500.00, Registry Police PAC, $500.00, Mass. Parole Officers PAC, $500.00, Mass. CPA PAC, $500.00, Bricklayers PAC, $750.00, Federation of Teachers PAC, $100.00, etc., etc.

According to Common Cause, McGovern was the number two darling of the PACs during the last election cycle raising $51,700 from the special interests groups, second only to Senate President Bill Bulger. Of all the women in the entire Commonwealth, McGovern is indisputably number one for political fundraising, spending and PAC money accepted. At her last big "time" at Maison Robert in Boston, McGovern actually plunked down $4775.92 in one night to wine and dine the political elite with checks in hand.

But times are changing. Presidential Candidate Jerry Brown cached whatever spirit there is for campaign finance reform in his near first-place finish in the State of Maine this weekend. Brown has scorned the PACs, shamed the big-spending candidates and demanded less cash and greater citizen involvement.

Candidates like Brown appeal to the best in us, whereas candidates like McGovern appeal to the worst. One seeks stimulus through ideas, the other the same through cash.

But 'tis the season of ideas, when people can't afford the glitz, opting instead for solutions. Hence the success of our own pauper candidate, Paul Tsongas.

Watch out Pat, because the voters are rejecting the big spending candidates all around you and Brown's fete in Maine is proof positive. Politics both congressional and presidential are changing.

And just remember that famous quote: As Maine goes, so goes the nation.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Selectman Kelley's long, late night harangue against the Tewksbury Town Republican Committee shows just how concerned he is about the TTRC's effort to make Town government more Democratic.

Mr. Kelley should be concerned. I collected some of those signatures. People eagerly signed the petition. Petition signers expressed gratitude for our activities and could care less that we were Republicans. They signed because they are mad as hell. They feel the trash fee was put upon them despite their express wishes at the ballot box.

Many felt the trash fee was unfair. Residents who live alone and produce very little trash could not understand why they had to pay the same fee as a large family producing several bags. Others wondered why a licensed, outside contractor, who could provide the service for $20.00 less, was having so much trouble getting approved. Indeed, town Hall sent out hundreds of certified letters warning residents that they must pay and stay with the Town of Tewksbury's trash monopoly. "No free enterprise here!" the $1.50 certified letters said.

Some town employees paid twice. Those who gave up concessions got fee'd anyway. The fee caused condo owners to wonder about assessment practices. "If the value of trash pickup is now declared to be $187.00, does that mean the town assessor has been reducing the assessment on my condo by $187.00 since I began paying taxes and condo fees many years ago?"

Mr. Kelley should be even more concerned by the number of people who I have talked to who will never pay the trash fee. By my accounting one in five persons have no intention of ever paying the trash fee. This is not a good sign for cash flow.

Mr. Kelley and other town leaders are concerned. For the first time those who would confiscate taxpayer's property have come up against a small, active, organized group of citizens, who with their petition drive say, "Let the voters approve or disapprove of the substitution of fees for taxes in a fair election. And by that election, let the people decide how much government they wish to have." That's the Democratic process, isn't it Mr. Kelley?

Greg Reynolds
Chairman, Tewksbury Town
Republican Committee

Dear Larz:

I would like to address the whole town of Tewksbury. Please be aware, if the former landfill is rezoned to residential, who is to say 25 or more years from now an (unscrupulous) builder would legally be able to build homes there. Stranger things have happened in this town. Most people who bought these homes wouldn't realize it was once a landfill. Being zoned heavy industrial would more or less warn people of what is there. This would be very dangerous. I wouldn't like to see, years from now, my grandchildren being contaminated, foolishly buying a house built right near a former landfill, if I'm not around to warn them.

Also, beware Tewksbury Business owners, of the Judy Fitterys and Jeannie Camaras of this town. You may soon be out of business. These people who want to close businesses and get land rezoned are not out for the good of the whole town, but only for themselves and one small area. Just think if that land was sold to some useful business. The taxes would be paid, which I understand is a large amount. Much needed jobs would be created. For the whole town this would be good to get much needed money for the town which includes the school system.

I would also like to know if there is a law against a wife and a husband being on the same board. There certainly should be.

I encourage everyone in town to please think, go to town meeting, vote at the election, and be heard.

Sincerely,
Mario Fiato

Dear Larz:

Messrs. Cressman and Kelley are at it again. They are threatening Tewksbury citizens with reduced services in the new fiscal year because "there just isn't enough money." If you listened to Mr. Cressman's budget message, you'd think he was getting ready for a "going out of business sale" or a take over from FDIC like so many of the businesses and banks in town have already done.

The fact is that in 1991 I paid more and services were reduced anyway. Add up your own tax bills, water bills, sewage bills, and trash fees and you will find that you paid between 10 and 15 percent more for the privilege of being a Tewksbury resident. The trash fee alone represented an eight percent increase in my property tax bill.

What did Tewksbury Inc. do with my increased taxes and fees?

First, the value of my stock in "Tewksbury Corporation" has declined dramatically. Talk to any real estate professional. Property values in Tewksbury have declined 20 to 30 percent, perhaps faster and deeper than any of the surrounding communities except Lowell and Lawrence. But my property tax bill went up!

Tewksbury residents experienced declines in educational service and performance. Tewksbury Schools SAT test scores in both math and verbal sank to new lows. Art and music programs were canceled. Teachers were laid off.

Route 38 is an embarrassment. Returning Desert Storm veterans have likened Main Street to a HUMVEE test track. Cluster bombed Iraqi freeways are in better shape.

The latest decline in service has to do with Tewksbury water. Now I'm afraid to drink the stuff. But, thanks to Mr. Cressman and Mr. Kelley, I'm paying more for it!

In 1991 services like education, roads, water and even the value of my property have declined. In Tewksbury in 1991, we paid more and got less. What can Messrs. Cressman and Kelley have in store for us in 1992 with a whole new $38,000,000 to spend?

David C. Keniston

The March 3, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Mrs. Mary Bousfield of Aldrich Road, was awarded $13,750 as being the value of 20 acres of her farm which was taken by the Town of Wilmington for a new wellfield.

Barbara Silverman of Middlesex Avenue, winner of an oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion was pictured as she accepted a War Bond from Past-Post 136 Commander Ralph Zwicker and Commander Angus MacFeeley. Barbara was the third person in her family to win the contest, her older brothers Richard and Stuart each won the same award.

Selectmen granted a license to Richard Rogers of Tewksbury to collect junk in Wilmington, provided he store and dispose of it elsewhere.

Walter Pierce, supervising principal of the Boutwell School District was named assistant superintendent of schools.

A town meeting supper was planned for 5:30 March 12 in the high school cafeteria. Tickets, at $1.25 each were to be available at the Polls on Election Day, Sat., March 5.

Elia's Market was advertising a coupon sale: 20 cents off a pound of franks with coupon and a $5 order; 41 cents off four quart bottles of Shurfine prune juice with coupon and 99 cents; 36 cents off three four roll packs of Softlin toilet tissue for only 99 cents with a coupon.

Tip of the old fedora

Personal messages almost never make their way into this column, but...a spirited tip of "the old fedora" goes this week to the caring person who returned our photos to Birch Drug a couple of weeks ago.

We'd been filling out claims and trying to locate a botched up order for nearly a month.

Pictures, especially Christmas pictures are very important to us...and when the negatives were gone too...we were just beginning to think that "all was lost," which would have been true if our order had not been mixed with that of someone who "cared."

CPR course

The New England Occupational Health Center, 66B Concord St., Wilmington, will repeat its infant and child cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course. This level-D program is a must for parents, teachers, child care providers and anyone who cares for children.

The course will be held March 11 and 18 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. For more information, or to register, call the New England Memorial Hospital Center for Health Promotion, (617) 979-7057.

Gwen J. Scott

Wilmington resident Gwen J. Scott of Fay Street, was recently lauded at Hanscom Air Force Base for completing 10 years as a federal employee.

She works as secretary at the Space and Missile Warning System program within the Electronic Systems Division. Before transferring to Hanscom AFB, she worked for the Internal Revenue Service in Andover.

Austin Prep

Austin Prep will hold an open house for prospective students and their parents on Sunday, March 8 from 1 to 4 p.m. This is the first time that Austin's annual spring open-house invites prospective female students, as the school will become co-educational this fall.

Middle school parents' program

A program for the parents of Middle School age children will be presented jointly by the Junior High School Parents Advisory Council and Student Services of the Tewksbury Public Schools on Thursday, March 19 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Junior High School, Victor Drive, Tewksbury. The program to be presented is entitled "Mainstreaming in the Middle School: What is a Middle School and What Will it do for My Child." This program will familiarize parents with the Middle School concept and with some current trends in regular and special education programming which will impact their children in the Middle School setting.

Ms. Joan Bates, an experienced Education Consultant from Newton, will be the facilitator. Ms. Bates has been a teacher and a program developer and director in both the public and collaborative school setting. She has provided educational programs for parents, teachers, and administrators in various forums. Ms. Bates has also conducted numerous program evaluations for school systems throughout the Commonwealth and is recognized as knowledgeable in the area of middle school programming and trends.

Hair

is the Total You

WATER RIGHTS, AND WRONGS

If a long soak in the tub for the purpose of hydrating the skin seems to produce the opposite effect, the fault may lie with additives in the water. For instance, all large water supplies use chlorine to purify their water, but this essential purifier dries out the skin. To combat this drying effect, it is necessary for bathers to introduce some additives of their own to their bath water. Popular among these is seaweed. It softens skin with proteins, vitamins, and minerals which pull toxins from the skin, while offering it nourishment. Also, essential oils that come from plants and flowers, such as eucalyptus and lavender, moisturize the skin when poured directly into the bath. Other oils (such as almond) coat the skin in bath water and prevent water from penetrating.

Loss of moisture can cause excessive dryness and can be remedied with the correct products and care. Let us recommend our line of Matrix Haircare products at SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington. Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sun. Call today for a free consultation. M/C and Visa are welcome.

We recommend Matrix Biolage conditioning balm for excessive dryness.

HINT: To preserve a bath's hydrating effect, apply oil to the skin while it is still damp (before towel-drying off).

True grit

Tewksbury's Jeff Halloran dives to save this pass from going out of bounds as teammate Joe Estee (33) watches the play develop. It's this kind of hustle and determination that has sparked the Redmen in tourney play.

Two straight for underdogs

Upstart Redmen stun Danvers

Maybe this idea of every boys' high school basketball team in the state qualifying for the EMass Tournament is a good one after all.

The Tewksbury High School Redmen, the 22nd seed in Division II North, made it two in a row Monday night when Dan DeLuca's buzzer-beating drive gave coach Charlie Micol's underdogs a 59-58 overtime victory over Danvers (14-7).

The Redmen (7-14) had advanced in the tourney with a 67-63 win over Wakefield (2-18) Saturday night at Wilmington High School.

Tewksbury will now battle Masconomet Regional in a 7:45 p.m. tapoff tonight (Feb. 26) at Chelmsford High School.

Tewksbury led 23-19 at the half Monday night before Darin Elder (14 points) led a Danvers' second half comeback.

But as has been the case in the postseason, the Redmen had several heroes take over, as Joe Lamonica (14 points) canned a big three pointer in regulation and drove the middle to score the bucket that knotted the score at 50-50 and sent the game into overtime.

Junior center Jon Craig continued to play well for TMHS with 17 rebounds, Corey Morrison finished with 13 points and Tim Grace had 10. Mike Kinnon played another steady floor game with nine points and six assists.

One Merrimack Valley Conference coach is obviously pleased by Tewksbury's success as the local underdog. "In Tewksbury's case, everybody qualifying for the tournament was a great idea," noted Wilmington High School coach Jim McCune. "They are a young team playing in a tough league and they beat a good Danvers team."

The Redmen and their fans are really going to like this 'everybody into the pool, the water's fine tourney' when they post another upset and really make things interesting.

TMHS girls advance

The Tewksbury High School basketball girls have advanced to the second round of the Division II North Tournament with a 38-24 victory over Saugus Tuesday night.

Coach Doug Anderson's team will now play the winner of tonight's (Feb. 26) Burlington vs. Saugus game at Wilmington High School Friday night starting at 6 p.m.

Nip Latin, 55-53

Wildcats survive round one

Wilmington High School senior guard Matt McManus sank four free throws over the final minute of play to help his Wildcats hold on for a 55-53 victory over Boston Latin Academy in the opening round of the EMass Division II North Basketball Tournament at the Wakefield High School Field House Monday night.

The 13th seeded Wildcats (13-8) now advance to play fourth seed Charlestown (15-3) tonight (Feb. 26) in a 6 p.m. contest at Revere High School.

The Wildcats led 32-25 at halftime Monday night and were rolling along with a 13 point margin in the final quarter when the roof began to cave in. The Latin (8-11) rally fell short thanks to Wilmington's success at the foul line (12-16) and the losing team's (5-15) poor performance.

Greg Maiella and Eric Flynn paced Wilmington with 13 points apiece, while McManus and Dave Oatis each finished with 10 points. John Lynch also helped the cause with eight points. Flynn grabbed 12 rebounds and McManus passed out five assists.

Wilmington coach Jim McCune feels that his team will need to turn its game up a notch in order to defeat a quick, pressing Charlestown squad. "They are a very quick team with three excellent shooters at the guards and a 6-4 big man who is an excellent jumper," noted McCune. "They also have a kid at the other forward who goes about 6-5, 260."

"They are not very deep and don't play that many kids," offered the WHS coach. "I think we can win, but we will have to limit their fastbreaks and limit them to just one shot. Offensively, we're going to try to run and keep looking to shoot the three point shot. We're not going to change much at this point. We score when we run and keep our turnovers down."

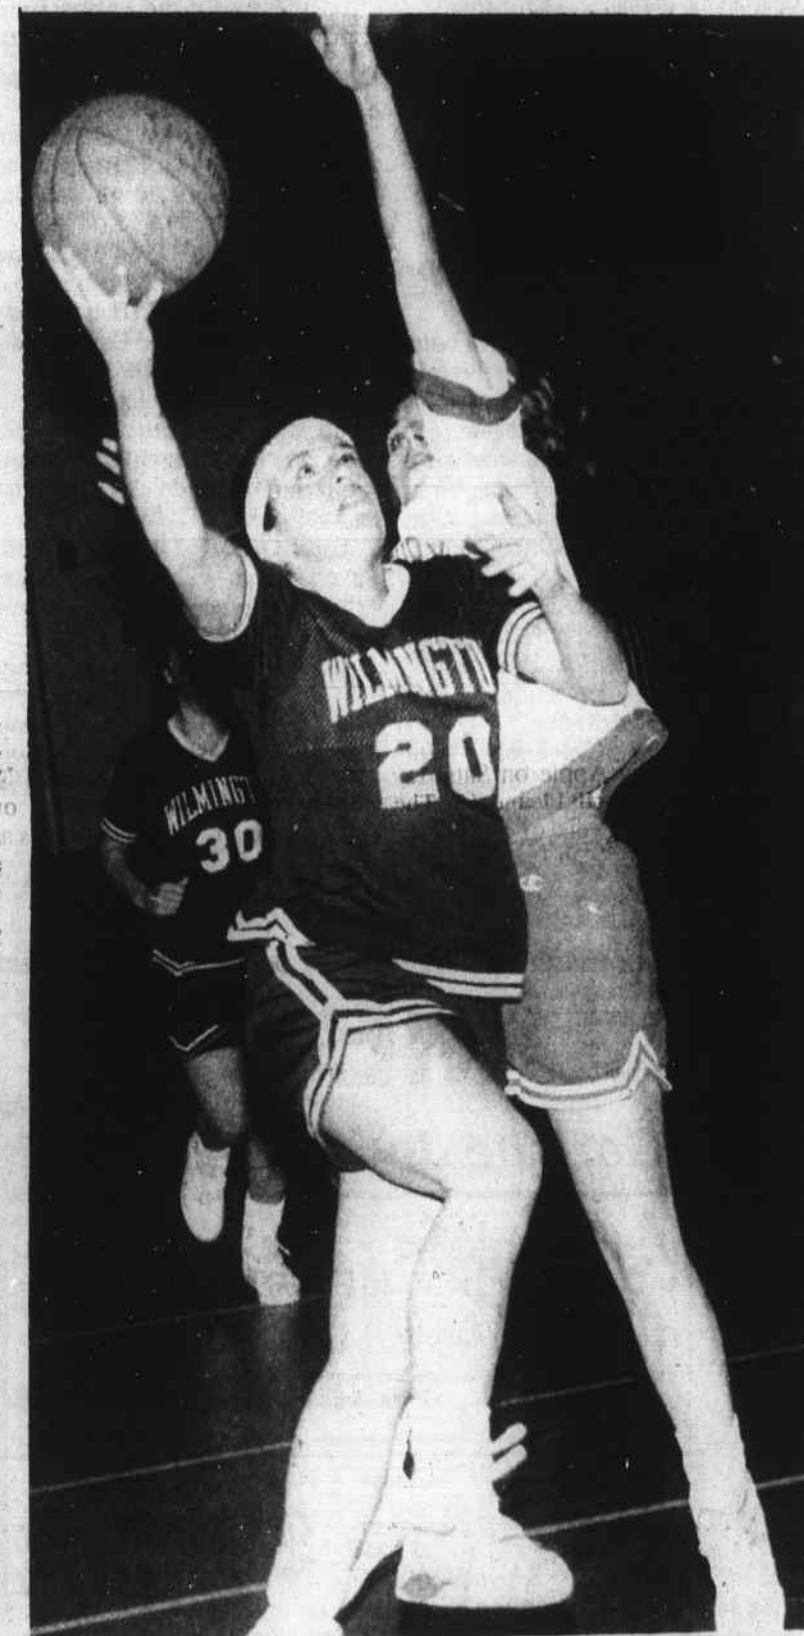

Wilmington appears to have just the right mix of quickness, size and depth to surprise a few people in this tournament.

K of C contest

Free throw winners

The Father Croke Council Knights of Columbus was well represented in the district free throw contest against competitors from Reading, North Reading and Lynnfield.

The Wilmington winners were: Jaclyn Eldridge, 10, Lisa Southmayd, 12 and David Peddle, 14. These fine shooters now move to the regional shootout to be held at Wilmington High School March 14 at 11 a.m.

WHS spirit

Wilmington High School senior Jen Rago drives past a Tewksbury player for two points during last week's MVC regular season finale for both teams.

Redmen open Thursday

Tewksbury High School's hockey squad will begin Division II North play Thursday night when they battle Rockland (13-6-1, fourth seed) at the Watertown Arena at 5:30 p.m. The Redmen finished their season in a slump at 9-8-2.

Last week senior goaltender Rob McGrath earned Player of the Year honors in the MVHL, while Peter McRae was a honorable mention member of the MVHL all-star team.

Protect 'em now, and boil 'em later

by Bill Conlon
Environmentalists basically come in two varieties:

There are those who do, and those who just talk. Picking up a cigarette butt is far better for the environment than bemoaning snail darters.

When the latter takes any action, (however rare) it is often bad, such as throwing paint on people in fur coats, or picketing over things they don't really understand.

The former type, however, needs all the good attention they can get. The do actual work. Groups like the Shawsheen Watershed Environmental Action Team come to mind, but there is another terrific bunch out there.

Chalk up a brilliant idea to Divers Environmental Survey, a group of New England SCUBA divers who are also active environmentalists. A new program of theirs will begin soon, and it's a beauty.

Divers from DES have frequently visited the Shawsheen River, where they pulled up submerged tires and trash that was missed in dozens of earlier clean-ups. The list of rivers and ponds they've visited up is an impressive one, especially since the group was only formed in January of last year!

But the latest DES project is a real winner, with benefits economic and environmental.

Known as the Ghost Gear Project, the divers from DES will attempt to haul up the countless thousands of lost lobster traps along the coast of Massachusetts. Brilliant!

"Ghost gear" is deadly. A lobster pot catches and holds lobsters until the lobsterman hauls it up. That's how they function.

But if the trap is lost, by storm or accident, the trap continues to catch and hold lobsters, only this time the crustaceans die of starvation. Being cannibals, other lobsters are drawn to the victim, which acts as bait. Lost lobster traps (ghost gear) will kill and kill again, for many years.

How many lobster pots have been lost? Nobody can say. But try this one for size: the "Storm With No Name," which clobbered the New England coast last year, caught the lobster fleet with all its gear in the water. The Massachusetts Lobsterman's Association says that up to 70 percent of that gear, an incredible 200,000 lobster pots, is now sitting on the bottom. And that was just ONE storm.

Divers from DES found heaps of old lobster pots on the bottom, such as a "supermarket" of pots that was discovered by Gloucester harbor -- a massive ball of lobster traps and rope made of hundreds, maybe thousands of lost pots. The idea for the Ghost Gear Project was born.

As of this year, all lobster traps must have an "escape hatch" which will open if the trap stays in the water too long. But there are lots of traps out there from earlier years.

The Divers Environmental Survey will try to retrieve all the lost lobster traps they can locate, and return them to the rightful owners if possible. The logic is sweet. This will benefit lobsters, lobstermen, and all of us who enjoy dipping our treats in melted butter.

All divers taking part in the trap collection effort will be registered with the Massachusetts Division of Law Enforcement (game wardens), and the point of departure, the date and site of the collection effort, and the spot where retrieved traps can be picked up by their owners, will be publicized.

No lobsters will be taken by any of the divers in the Ghost Gear Project (big temptation there!) and no trap collection dive will be held unless a duly licensed Massachusetts lobsterman takes an active role.

And that is a bizarre marriage, by all accounts.

Over the years, lobsterman have sometimes hated all SCUBA divers. Stories have been told, and I'll have to admit I believe them, of lobster fishermen shooting at divers in the water near their traps. Maybe those stories are legend, or maybe not. A lobsterman counts on his catch for his livelihood. A skin diver could, possibly, be cleaning out his traps underwater and he'd never be the wiser. Honest divers would never touch a lobster pot, but we all know everybody is utterly honest, right? Sure they are.

But this time, the lobstermen are in a win-win situation. First, traps cost money, and a lost pot is money out of pocket. Getting those traps back would be terrific! (Hopefully DES has planned some kind of auction or sale of unclaimed pots, or even a "retrieval fee".) The Storm With No Name wiped out a number of lobstermen, after all the gear they owned was lost.

Second, a lobster dying in a lost trap is never sold. Keeping those lobsters alive is certainly in the best interests of the lobstermen. More lobsters in the water means more lobsters to be caught.

Third, the ghost gear usually has a length of rope attached. That rope causes headaches for all boaters off the Massachusetts coast, with props fouled and anchors lost. Good riddance to lost rope.

As for the divers of DES, they get the warm satisfaction being the sort of environmentalist that everybody looks up to. They earn the title of environmentalist.

What can you do? The divers are in need of lots of equipment, from a 300x backlit microscope and lab work to inflatable Zodiac boats, and probably some bucks too. Call them at (508) 667-3808 to see what you can do to help the Ghost Gear Project.

There will be another free Hunter Safety Course at Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club, starting March 5. Mark your calendar.

A tip of the brim to Bill Martino, who was named Sportsman of the Year by the Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club at their annual game supper in January. (How did I miss that?) Incidentally, Tewksbury R&G will again explore the idea of digging a trout pond in back, and Rick Cefalo is chairing the committee. With all the natural streams on the site, such a pond would certainly work!

As for a TR&G proposal to hold a bass tournament -- sure. I'd be glad to put in a plug here. Let me know.

The Boston Sportsmen's Show is set to begin soon at Bayside Expo Center. The show will run March 5 to 8, and includes all sorts of fresh and salt-water displays, hunting and fishing seminars, guide services, the awards program for the Mass. Division of Marine Fisheries, and Gorgeous Gorge -- an aquarium featuring all the gamefish species in the Northeast.

The biggest gamefish taken last year (and registered for a state pin) were noted at the Eastern Fishing & Outdoors Expo at the Centrum this month. The only one taken nearby was a 6-pound-4 chain pickerel out of Forest Lake, Methuen. Aren't we taking big ones around here? If you catch one that meets the state's minimum size (listed in the abstract that came with your license) take it to Wildside Sports, N. Wilmington, to be weighed. Eddie is now a state weigh-station for fish.

I saw two guys ice fishing Long Pond in Tewksbury on Tuesday but I didn't have the nerve to walk out and say hello. The ice was terrible last week, and it can't be anywhere near healthy now. Stay off the ice!!

Wilmington senior topics

Spring's approaching
Next Sunday the month of March will make its entrance. What a wonderful feeling to know the spring is not too far behind. That means it is time to come out of winter hibernation and join the other seniors participating in the many programs and activities we have for you at the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center. Here you will have the opportunity through the activity programs to meet residents in your age bracket enjoying the same activity you enjoy. Many a lasting friendship have been developed between seniors while exercising, dancing, working on craft, ceramic or shop classes, playing whist, bingo or cards. See for yourself — you will be glad you did.

Lunch program
The lunch program has resumed after the vacation under the school nutrition program. We have been seeing an increase in our delivered meals again. Some of you had not been happy with the type meals you were receiving a few months ago. If you were one of those seniors and stopped the meals, Mrs. Quinn, school nutritionist has visited the homes of many shutins to find out for herself how she could improve the meals. This, she has done and the shutin meals are now very well accepted. We are being told they are very good and like them very much. By hearing from you is the only way we can correct the problem as we did with the delivered meals. Do not stop a meal that you need. Let us know and we will do our utmost to correct the problem.

If you are a new shutin senior who is finding it difficult to prepare a hot meal for yourself or if you know of a Wilmington senior whom you feel should be having a meal sent to them, call us at the center 657-7595 or 658-2258. The cost of the meals is $1. Remember, if you would like a meal served for you at the lunch site you may order a full course meal or a salad and soup or salad and sandwich; all meals have dessert. These meals are also $1 and are delivered and served and have to be ordered by calling the Center the day before.

Legal rep

The legal representative from the Cambridge/Somerville Elder Legal Services will be at the Center Wednesday morning, March 4 from 10 to noon. She will help you with problems involving Social Security benefits, SSI, food stamps, Medicaid, and Medicare coverage, low income nursing home and day care coverage.

Commissioners to meet

The Commissioners Informative meeting will be held in the Senior Center Monday, March 2 at 1 p.m.

Blue Cross enrollment

Blue Cross open enrollment will extend to the end of March. Coverage will take place on June 1. This year you will have six Medex plans to choose from. They are: Medex Gold previously Medex 3, Medex Bronze, formerly medex 2, the others are Medex Silver, Medex Core, Medex Basic and Medex Standard. Medex Gold at $110.07 a month is the most popular. It covers all the benefits Medex 3 did. Medex Silver at $100.42 a month covers hospital Part A deductible $652 but not the Part B doctors deductible. After you pay the first $250 in prescription drugs it will pay. It allows mail order through the pharmacy up to $3000 a year.

Medex Standard at $91.84 a month does not cover Part A hospital deductible or Part B doctor deductible, but does pay prescription drugs up to 80 percent for brand name and 100 percent for generic drugs after $35.00 is paid by you. It also allows ordering by mail up to 90 day supply of brand names for $10 and 90 days of generic drugs for $2.

Medex Basic at $81.40 a month does not cover Part A or Part B deductible. It does provide benefits for medications after you pay the first $250. Will reimburse up to 80 percent of brand names and 100 percent for generic drugs.

Medex Bronze formerly Medex 2 at $65.56 a month covers the Part A hospital deductible at $652 and Part B for certain Medex covered services.

Medex Core at $51.51 a month does not cover the hospital or doctor deductible but will pay the hospital coinsurance of $163 per day for 61 through the 90th day of hospitalization. Will also pay the lifetime reserve coinsurance for each of the allowable 60 days, will also provide 100 percent coverage for an additional 365 days once the lifetime reserve days are used.

Medex Core pays the remaining 20 percent of Part B services after $100 annual deductible is met. This 20 percent is applicable to doctors services, inpatient and outpatient medical and surgical services and supplies, physical and speech therapy, diagnostic test, durable medical equipment and ambulance service. Clinical laboratory services are covered 100 percent by Medicare.

Shirt, tie and boxing gloves

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Boxing will be known as a sport of gentlemen and safe to boot if the owner and members of the Greater Boston Sport Boxing Club have anything to say and do about the sport's reputation.

Even the Club's logo of a man in a shirt and tie with boxing gloves draped over his shoulder shows the difference. However, if anyone thinks that difference will not allow them to advance in the sport, they should ask Woburn's Mike Aceto, who made it to the finals in the recent Golden Gloves Novice Championships at Lowell Auditorium. He lost a close decision of the judges, but is already training for the upcoming Diamond Bouts.

Aceto has been training at the club for the last five months.

"Boxing is a very dangerous sport and it should be treated that way," Club owner Gregory Leschishin said.

He added, "At my facility we stress conditioning."

Leschishin is also a member of the USA Boxing Federation, formerly known as the United States Amateur Boxing Federation. He explained that the sport does not have a enough discipline as yet.

Because of this lack, it has been open to charges from the American Medical Association (AMA) that it is too dangerous.

Leschishin reports that the Federation has been attempting to work with the AMA to establish safety guidelines.

Those guidelines would include: conditioning, flexibility, wind and coordination and boxing skills.

As a result this is the type of conditioning that Leschishin requires of his members before they can start sparring.

"We ask that you show us outside the ring that you can handle yourself inside the ring," Leschishin said.

But outside the ring does not mean street fighting. It means

From Salem State to Broadway

SALEM - Stoneham actress Kathy St. George, a featured performer in last year's Tony Award winning production of "Fiddler on the Roof," will take the stage at the Lyceum Hall in Salem on Monday, March 2, to reflect on the joys and trials of theatre life.

St. George's talk, "From Salem State to Broadway," will draw on experiences from her own successful career, which began in 1974 at Salem State College.

The Stoneham native appeared in a number of college productions, including "Wait Until Dark" and "Butterflies Are Free," and after graduation stayed active in community theatre while teaching in the Stoneham school system.

In 1979, after winning the Best Supporting Actress award at the New England Theatre conference for her role in Noel Coward's "Private Lives," St. George left her teaching job and moved to New York City to pursue an acting career.

Her big break came in 1981 when she was cast as one of Tevye's daughters in a Broadway revival of "Fiddler on the Roof" starring the late Hershel Bernardi.

Over the next decade, St. George would tour four times with "Fiddler." The 1991 tour, featuring Topol in the lead role, ended with a seven month run on Broadway and won the Tony Award for best revival.

St. George has also performed in numerous regional and summer stock theatre productions. The actress played Helen Keller in "The Miracle Worker" at the Cabaret Theatre at the University of Texas, and had a dual role in "A Christmas Carole" at Boston's Charles Playhouse.

Her talents have not always been restricted to the stage. St. George, who was profiled in 1990 by a Japanese television show about successful American women, has appeared in episodes of "All My Children" and "Spenser: For Hire."

She has also made industrial films for McDonalds and Digital Equipment Corporation.

St. George's lecture will focus not only on the glamorous side of the acting profession - the fame, the travel and the potential financial rewards - but also on its less pleasant aspects.

"The acting profession is about being a principal in a Broadway show one year," says St. George, "and delivering telegrams dressed as a bumbee the next. And unfortunately I'm speaking from personal experience!"

"From Salem State to Broadway" will be held at the Lyceum Hall, 43 Church Street in Salem, at 8 p.m. Admission is $5, $4 for students, free for diners in the downstairs restaurant.

For information or to make reservations call the Lyceum at (508) 745-7665.

Firing an employee is one of the toughest jobs a supervisor ever faces. An insurance sales manager was known for his tact and diplomacy. One of his young salesmen was performing so poorly that he had to be terminated. The manager called him in his office and said, "Son, I don't know how we're ever going to get along without you, but starting Monday, we're going to find out." "I told George Guyette, 'I just attended a lecture given by Mr. Beebe that brought home to me a lot of things I wasn't familiar with.' George replied, 'So what! My dog does that all the time.'" the woman who runs for that high office is homely, the men won't vote for her. And, if she is strikingly beautiful, the women won't vote for her."

Bill Burton was a crossing tender at a spot where an express train made quick work of a buggy. A grueling cross-examination left him unshaken in this story: "The night was dark and I waved the lantern frantically, but the driver of the carriage paid no attention to my warning. Later the railroad super called the flagman to his

About the towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 10-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

STONEHAM - The Town of Stoneham is having a white sale.

Not. More accurately, Stoneham is running a pilot drop-off program for "white goods" - in response to the Department of Environmental Protection ban on the disposal of white goods which took effect January 1st.

Through the free program, residents are dropping off the goods at the Stevens Street yard the same days and hours of the recycling drop-off - the first Wednesday of the month, the third Saturday, and the following Monday.

White goods are defined as large appliances, such as water heaters, dishwashers, refrigerators, freezers, gas and electric ranges, and clothes washers and dryers - all of which used to be picked up curbside in Stoneham and sent with the regular rubbish to RESCO.

Residents who wish to take advantage of the program need to obtain a permit from the DPW office.

According to the "Stoneham Independent," Brockton Iron and Steel presently handles the Town's tin can recycling, runs a white goods program, and will provide a roll-off and haul the goods away, at no cost to the town. A major consideration in that deal is that the appliances still have their capacitors intact.

READING - Cerretani's Supermarket is holding a white sale.

Not. Reading's Solid Waste Committee has named Cerretani's one of its "recyclers of the month" - as the first and only Reading merchant to provide to the public a recycling program for computer and white paper.

Two drop-off bins for the papers have been placed at the front of the store.

Caring is a Family Tradition. Yours and Ours.

Choosing the right Nursing Home.

Choosing a quality Nursing Home is never easy. It's even more difficult to find one that meets the patient's needs as well as your own expectations. There are so many factors to consider; location and reputation, ambiance and amenities. Most importantly of all, the quality of care and level of services.

It's a big decision don't rush.

Take your time and consider all the different factors carefully. Don't settle on the nearest place or decide simply on the lowest price. There is more to the selection of a nursing home than just price. Sometimes only a few more dollars a day separates an outstanding facility from a mediocre one. Don't make a hasty decision because it is a big decision.

Consider Greenview Manor in Wakefield and what it has to offer. It is a facility that stands out from all the rest, and has all the things you are looking for.

A Tradition of Caring.

Greenview Manor is owned and operated by the Bane family. A family with over 30 years of experience and expertise in providing care and services to the elderly.

Greenview Manor has recently been up-graded and completely refurbished. A variety of comfortable, well-appointed accommodations await your selection and preference. Suites, deluxe semi-private rooms and very affordable standard units. Besides the attractive decor and design, there is something else very distinctive about Greenview Manor. The Bane family's personal commitment to high quality nursing care and attentive service motivates every department, every shift.

You will find Greenview Manor has all the things you want and look for in a Nursing Home; quality care, friendly service, comfortable accommodations and affordable rates. One more important point. Caring is a family tradition, yours and ours.

being able to perform certain tests showing that you can do simple things like keeping your hands up for the required three minutes a round lasts.

When it comes to teaching younger people how to box, Winchester's Rob Alford can attest to the fact that what Leschishin says is gospel.

Alford has been a member of the Club since last June. "When I first joined he told me if I fought on the streets I would be kicked out."

Alford added, "It has turned my life around." Part of that turnaround has been higher grades in his Junior year at Winchester High School.

In a separate interview, Leschishin said, "We stress education first."

He added, "I don't teach anyone under 18, without the parents consent and if the grades are under the average, I don't want them here."

Alford, who grew up listening to stories about boxing from his grandfather, Arthur Alford, said, "As far back as I can remember, he told me stories."

Arthur was a boxer in the U.S. Navy.

Although his parents do not fully support Rob's dream to become a professional boxer, they allowed him to buy a bag for the home.

He relates how he used to practice on that bag. "Then I came here and it is totally different."

Although Alford had wanted to enter the competition for the Golden Gloves and the Diamond Bouts, Leschishin talked him out of it.

"I have an opportunity for a career in this. He's afraid that if I got hurt I'd get discouraged," Alford said.

Leschishin explained the philosophy at work behind the decision. "Rob is one of my youngest students."

He added, "I would like to see my boys make their mistakes here rather than in front of people."

When handling a young student, Leschishin notes that he is in constant communication with the parents. Aside from education, Leschishin wants to make sure the student is eating properly while he is building up the proper muscle structure.

Leschishin is as unique as his Club is. He started boxing as a youth growing up in Ohio and has been at it off and on for 15 years.

Leschishin has a degree in education and taught at the high school level for five years and was a football coach.

In the meantime he also volunteered to teach boxing at local Boy's Clubs. However, he decries the sport's figures of today and the high salaries they make.

Because of his interest in music, Leschishin left teaching to take a job as a program director and a disc jockey at a radio station in Colorado. From there he found Hollywood and a job as a writer for a music publication.

It was while living in Los Angeles that he got the idea for the Club.

"A lot of chi-chi clubs had matches where they were doing everything except contact," he noted.

About that time, Leschishin notes that he came to Boston to visit his brother and fell in love with New England.

He moved here in 1985 and worked full-time for a bank while teaching boxing part-time at a karate studio.

When the school got crowded, and Leschishin's desires to go out on his own became too big to ignore, he received the support of friends and family who told him to go for it.

He notes that the battle has been uphill since then but the success is starting to show.

At a point when he was almost ready to throw in the towel, a story in the Boston Phoenix brought him some attention, this was soon followed by a story in the Wall Street Journal.

Other articles followed in magazines such as Mens Health and Self, a women's magazine.

Leschishin said that he was mentioned in the Self article although he only has three female members and they are not allowed to fight because of the Federation rulings.

"They only come here for conditioning," Leschishin said.

Sports and boxing are not the only thing on his mind. On a recent day off, he took great pleasure in the fact that he would be going as far away from sports and boxing as the Museum of Fine Arts would take him.

Leschishin feels that the popularity of boxing is cyclical and at present is on the rise.

He attributes that to the lack of male heroes.

"This sport demands a lot of trust," Leschishin said. "That is what a lot of men don't have."

He looks at the possibility of what will happen to the sport in the light of the recent Mike Tyson conviction.

"I know the sport will never die," Leschishin prophesied. He based the opinion on other great fighters like Evander Holyfield.

He describes the fighter as a spiritual, non-controversial person, who volunteers his time to help others.

As a result, Holyfield's conditioning program is the one that the Club uses for its members.

Leschishin also sees the fact that unlike many of the traditional boxing clubs with smoke filled rings, his club is clean, and is open full-time with trained people on hand to give direction to novices.

One has to think that the formula is working. According to Leschishin, the age range of his members is from 15 to 64.

They are in professions ranging from truck drivers to lawyers, psychiatrists and other white collar people.

Some state and Boston police use the facility as well as college students.

"I get a kick out of this," Leschishin said.

He noted, "I get to see an incredible change in men with trust."

The Club is located at 1167 Massachusetts Ave., Arlington. For more information, call (617) 648-5252.

Cerretani's also accepts high density plastic bags, and leases a separate cardboard compactor which yields 10 tons per week for recycling. On tap are two machines for plastic and aluminum can recycling.

According to Cerretani's Operations Manager Ralph Bellegarde, the Reading store uses twice as many paper bags as plastic ones.

Not quite. The Wilmington "Town Crier" senior topics columnist - and senior center master cheerleader - offers the following report and advice for getting through the winter.

"Our sing along was held last Wednesday morning after the exercise class at 11 a.m. With the cold weather upon us I feel it is not wise to leave the building right away after a strenuous exercise class.

"The body should cool off a little, you should let your heart and lungs settle down. By singing along with our volunteer piano player Gil Smith, you can do this in an enjoyable way.

"Don't expose yourself to a medical problem that can be avoided. Stay and enjoy the sing along with other seniors in the center.

"You will be glad you did when you feel all the benefits you were seeking when you joined our exercise class remain with you day after day.

"How fast they would leave with a serious cold."

FREE LECTURE ON DRUG/ALCOHOL ADDICTION

What does addiction to alcohol or drugs do to a person physically, emotionally and mentally? Many people say, "If he really wanted to stop, he could," but it isn't that easy.

More can be learned about the reasons, effects and implications of alcohol and drug addiction when the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital Partnership Recovery Center presents "Addictions: An Overview" on Thursday, March 5, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at 8 Crystal St., Melrose.

This program will discuss not only what addiction does to the alcoholic/addict, but will also cover what it does to families and how it impacts on all of our lives.

This lecture is free and no registration is required. For more information, call the MWH Partnership Recovery Center at (617) 979-3757.

PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS

Are you a Single Parent? Parents Without Partners is an international, non-profit organization dedicated to the welfare and interests of single parents and their children. It's membership consists of women and men who are separated, divorced, widowed or never married. PWP offers support, information on pertinent issues, weekly family activities and adult socials.

A Newcomers Orientation is held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the rear function hall of the Royal Hawaiian Restaurant, 34 Cambridge Road, (Rte. 3 South), Burlington, exit 33 off I-95 (Rte. 128). General membership meets at 8 p.m.

There will also be a Singles Dance sponsored by Parents Without Partners on Saturday, March 7, from 8 p.m. to midnight at the K of C Hall, 2068 Main St., Rte. 38, in Tewksbury. Admission is $5.

For more information call (508) 667-6834.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY ANNUAL ANTIQUE SHOW

Members of the Malden Historical Society are busy gearing up for the group's 6th Annual Antique Show to be held Saturday, March 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Centre United Methodist Church in Malden Square.

Drawing dealers from throughout New England, the Show will feature a variety of antiques and collectibles for browsing or purchase. Among other things, dealers will be displaying Victoriana, vintage clothing and old linens, jewelry and silver, prints and paintings, furniture, glassware, porcelain and china, and books and old documents.

Admission is $2.50. Proceeds support the Society's archiving project.

The church is located at the corner of Pleasant and Washington Streets in downtown Malden. (From Rtes. 93 and 99, take Rte. 60 to Malden Center; follow signs to Show, or take the Orange Line on the "T" to Malden Station.)

Convenient, validated parking is available. Food and beverages will be sold. The church is handicapped accessible.

For more information call (617) 322-7789.

PEDIATRIC CPR AT WINCHESTER HOSP

The national statistics on infant and childhood injuries are staggering. According to USA Today, choking and suffocating are the leading accidental killers of babies under the age of one. Appropriate Pediatric and Infant CPR techniques differ from those used on adults - knowing how to correctly use CPR can mean the difference between life and death.

Winchester Hospital will offer a Pediatric and Infant CPR non-certification course from 6 to 10 p.m. on March 4th at 7 McKay Avenue in Winchester.

For price information and to register call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at (617) 756-2220.

"A LIFE WORTH LIVING"

"A Life Worth Living" is a lecture on issues facing adult children of alcoholic/dysfunctional families by psychotherapist Carly Lund. It will be presented at the Stoneham Library, 431 Main St., Stoneham, Thursday, March 5 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Open to the public, the admission is free.

For lecture information call (617) 666-2041.

PARENT SUPPORT GROUP MEETINGS SET

The local PAL parent support group for family members of children with behavioral, emotional and mental special needs has scheduled bimonthly meetings at the Wakefield Library.

For parents faced with the tough and frustrating task of parenting a "difficult" child, talking with people who face the same problems with their own kids can sometimes help. The support group offers a safe place to share experiences and information.

Meetings, sponsored by the Parent/Professional Advocacy League, will be held on Mondays, March 9 and March 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. The Wakefield Library is on Main Street in Wakefield Center, on the 136/137 bus line from Malden to Reading. All are welcome. Confidentiality is observed.

If interested in speaking to a parent about the meeting or a related topic, call Judy at (617) 665-9278. To speak to a professional contact, call Connie at (617) 246-1414.

Wilmington Karate School fights back at recession

With so many businesses hurting because of the recession, some would think a Karate school, which for some is considered an extra activity for kids and adults, would be devastated. Not so for the Academy of Traditional Karate in Wilmington.

When Todd Keane, owner and operator of the Academy, was asked why when funds are so tight for so many families are people flocking to his Academy, he responded that "people are looking to get back to basics. By this I mean the fads of the 80s fitness boom have faded. Karate has been around for centuries and will always remain popular for a number of reasons.

"First, for youths it stresses effort, achievement, and strong morals and values. Second, as an athletic activity it is unparalleled, in that it increases your stamina, helps you to lose weight, and improves flexibility and strength. Third, it reduces stress, which is so important in tough times, and it promotes a positive, 'Yes, I Can' attitude. Lastly, it's a fun and exciting activity that you don't get bored with."

All this sounds wonderful, but still there are far fewer kids and adults in karate than in other sports like baseball. Mr. Keane says that "although that is true, more and more people are realizing the benefits of karate training. The problem stems from the fact that many people think it is expensive or get the wrong idea about the martial arts by watching the movies, with stars like Jean-Claude Van Damme and Steven Seagal. The cost averages around $60 a month, less than many health clubs, and although these movies can be interesting to watch, there is very little similarity between what you see on the screen and what your experience will be in a dojo (Japanese training hall)."

Again, karate seems like a wonderful activity to become involved in, but why has your school done so well while other businesses with great products and services have sputtered? "One of the reasons we have succeeded is because while many people have been afraid to invest in new equipment and facilities, we've just built a new custom-designed training hall that is a state-of-the-art training facility, with a special cushioned floor to reduce the chance of injury, plus full locker-room and shower facilities. Another reason is that we pay personal attention to every student. This is why we get so many referrals. At the Academy of Traditional Karate, we work with every student to try to make them reach their goals. In sum, we work hard on the service side of the school."

The Academy of Traditional Karate is located at 155 West St. in Wilmington, across from Casa Di Fior function hall on Rt. 93. You may view a class or contact Mr. Keane at (508) 658-2077.

It's good to hear that some area businesses are doing well.

Poems wanted for national contest

Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum Inc. is offering a grand prize of $500 in its new "Awards of Poetic Excellence" poetry contest. Thirty-four other cash awards are also being offered. The contest is free to enter.

Poets may enter one poem only, 20 lines or less, on any subject, in any style. Contest closes March 31, but poets are encouraged to submit their work as soon as possible, since poems entered in the contest also will be considered for publication in "Poetic Voices of America," a hardcover anthology. Prizes will be awarded by May 31.

Poems should be sent to Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum Inc., Dept. CG, 203 Diamond St., Sistersville, WV 26175.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

The Northeast Consortium for Staff Development's 7th Annual Teachers Sharing Conference is scheduled for one day this week at Wakefield's Northeast Metro Vocational High School.

The "biggest teachers sharing conference ever," limited to 350 participants, it offers more than 50 workshops "by teachers, for teachers, sharing ideas and successes."

Presenters from the Middlesex East area all hail from Wakefield.

Karen Callan, Irene Kelly and Martha Philbrick are offering "Elementary Building-Based Support Teams (K-4)," a practical workshop designed to present the nuts and bolts of the organization, function and positive outcomes of a building-based support team. Topics include: team composition and meeting individual needs of students through problem-solving, set up through procedures, referral process, and recommendations and follow-up procedures.

Wakefield's Suzanne O'Keefe and Deborah Turgeon have designed "Regular Education Initiative: A Shared Responsibility (K-4)," a workshop which addresses the issues of mainstreaming special needs students and providing support for at risk students within the regular education class. They will explain their "devised program" which is used in an elementary school and which focuses on adapting the curriculum, mainstreaming strategies, cooperative learning techniques, and eliminating the pull-out approach.

Richard Burchill, Susan Conley and Joan Rossi will present "T.E.A.M.S.: Teaming Educationally Affects More Students (K-4)," a session explaining the Dolbear Elementary School's development and implementation of the T.E.A.M.S. program to maximize integration of regular and special education through the strategies and processes involved in collaborative teaching methods and cooperative learning.

For the first-time in forever, according to Reading Superintendent of Schools Dr. Robert Munnely, no Reading teachers are giving workshops.

—According to Winchester Schools Director of Physical Education and Health Jan Dolan, Winchester students in grades seven through nine are taught about AIDS as part of the health care curriculum; K-6 students receive substance abuse education; and there is no health program in the curriculum for students in grades 10-12.

However, special programs on AIDS-HIV prevention are scheduled in the high school throughout the school year. These have included a visit from former Channel 4 health reporter Jeanne Blake, author of "Risky Times" and several HIV positive speakers. These programs were funded by the Winchester Women's Club and approved by the high school principal.

—"SEEM votes to sever financial ties to town; special education trust fund to be established by June 30" is the headline; and the article in the North Reading "Transcript" begins as follows:

"The town of North Reading's 23 years of service as fiscal agent for the SEEM Collaborative will soon be coming to an end."

It seems SEEM's Board of Directors has voted unanimously "to set up a trust fund, overseen by an appointed treasurer and separate from the town, to handle its financial matters."

"This action was the culmination of an investigation, instituted by a handful of citizens, into how SEEM funds have been accounted for over the years."

"At least one School Committee member, saddened by the whole affair, said it amounted to an attempt to 'fix' something 'that wasn't broken.'"

Guitar recital Friday night at Phillips Academy, Andover

On Friday evening, February 28 at 7:30 p.m., in Cochran Chapel, located on Chapel Avenue, Andover, the Music Department will present the Academy Symphony and Chamber Orchestras performing varied orchestral repertoire and featuring student soloists who will graduate this June.

The Academy Symphony Orchestra under the direction of William Thomas will play Beethoven's Egmont Overture, and the Elgar Cello Concerto featuring PA senior Joseph Hong. The Academy Chamber Orchestra, also under Thomas' direction, will perform Vivaldi's Concerto grosso in d minor for two violins and cello featuring PA seniors Maki Hsieh, violin; Noy Thrupkaew, violin; and Joseph Hong, cello.

On Saturday evening, February 29 at 7 p.m., in the Timken

Recital Room at Graves Hall the Music Department will present William Matthews, classical guitarist, performing a program of 20th century compositions which will include works by Julian Orbon, Lester Trimble, Ralph Towner, Sebastian Currier, Michael Gandolfi, Frederic Hand and Heitor Villa-Lobos.

William Matthews' concerts throughout the world have made him one of America's most successful cultural ambassadors. His annual international tours during the last 15 years have taken him to over 65 countries and have included many concerts sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

Any inquires concerning these performance may be directed to Phillips Academy Music Department, (508) 749-4263.

Both the concert and recital are free of charge and open to the public.

"Radio Flyer" Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn

"Radio Flyer" Starring Elijah Wood, Joseph Mazzello, Lorraine Bracco, Adam Baldwin. Directed by Richard Donner. Produced by Lauren Shuler-Donner. Written by David Mickey Evans. Rated PG-13.

Two little boys decide to escape from an abusive stepfather by building themselves a flying machine with a Radio Flyer wagon and a lawn mower engine. The abuse they suffer is quite real, brutally real, in fact. It is as real as their imaginative means of escape.

If you find this strange mixture of genres more than a little confusing, you are not alone. A fairy tale about child abuse is an odd combination. One genre calls for whimsical escapism, the other for serious reality. Writer David Mickey Evans and director Richard Donner try to force these two disparate style to mesh, but you just can't hammer a square peg into a round hole.

While the two extremes of fantasy and domestic violence take the movie in opposing directions, much of the film is a delightful look at that magical time in our lives when we believe anything is possible just because we think it is. Child actors Elijah Wood and Joseph Mazzello are both funny and genuine as they fight the monsters in their closet, set about on exploration expeditions or just whisper the secrets of their discoveries.

Their story is told as a flashback through the adult eyes of Mike, whose narrative is provided by an uncredited Tom Hanks. As a child, Mike (Wood) and younger brother Bobby (Mazzello) go West with their mom in the summer of '69 after their dad abandons them. Mom, played by Lorraine Bracco, soon remarries a man whom she sees as the answer to her prayers. Known only as "the King," he soon turns out to be a drunkard who vents his anger on the most defenseless member of the family, Bobby.

It is here the film's credibility begins to wobble. While Donner never show any direct violence, the shouting and bruises on Bobby are horrifying. We never even get a clear picture of "the King," played by Adam Baldwin. He's always shown in outline or with his face obscured, making him all the more frightening. Yet this film has been packaged as warm and cuddly family fare. Parents expecting to settle down with their kids for a couple of hours of cute escapism may be shocked by what they get.

The second big problem is that Mom is a moron. She never notices the bruises on her son's back because she is working a double shift at a diner. Come on. Even if the boys do try to hide the beatings from her, there is just too much physical evidence not to know something is wrong.

The film would have worked much better had it followed one path or the other. If the films denouement hadn't become a visit to Wonderland, the movie would have succeeded as a cautionary tale of child abuse. Wood and Mazzello are strong and charming and could have taken this film anywhere. The scene in which they concoct a magic potion to protect them from monsters, such as their stepfather, is witty and poignant because their performances are witty and poignant. It is unfortunate that Wood and Mazzello landed in a script that couldn't match their talents.

Medicine Man stars Sean Connery as an eccentric scientist who thinks he's found the cure for cancer in the Brazilian rain forest. Only the developers are clearing the forest faster than he can work and his unimaginative research assistant, Lorraine Bracco, has the power to stop his funding. Connery and Bracco make an odd couple and the movie's pacing is uneven, although the intentions are good. The real star is the jungle, which is lush and exotic and inviting. Rated R. **

Final Analysis is a glitzy soap opera featuring wicked sisters, a handsome, if glibly shrink and a bizarre murder mystery. Richard Gere, Kim Basinger and Uma Thurman make for an attractive, intriguing cast and director Phil Joanou arranges for plenty of atmosphere, but the plot is fairly ridiculous. Rated R. **

Fried Green Tomatoes spins a rich story about two strong women who buck the system and live their lives as they like, not as they are expected. The story is told through Jessica Tandy's flashbacks as she tries to point out to Kathy Bates that her life can be anything she wants, if she is willing to live it. The film's few flaws can be overlooked in favor of Mary Stuart Masterson's lively performance and a great storyline. Rated PG-13.

The Hand that Rocks the Cradle is a shameless thriller that uses every trick in the book -- and makes them work. Rebecca De Mornay is the psycho nanny who hopes to do more than take care of the family she thinks ruined her. Creepy in a personal way, this shuddering escapism may rehash a tired theme, but it makes that theme cook. Rate R. ** 1/2

When the contest was over Paul had his winter's supply of potatoes for only $5....At the Olympic Games in France a reporter asked a Russian Track Coach why the Soviets produce such fast runners. "It's really quite simple," the coach replied with a smile, "We use real bullets in our starting guns!"

I enjoyed reading Woburn High School's correspondent Jon Hartmore's "Senior Profiles of Kelly Lindstrom and Stephen Qualey." I especially appreciated knowing that there is at "least one" other basement like mine in the area. Jon wrote that Kelly Lindstrom's basement has a collection of airplane wheels, washboards, turn-of-the-century radios, stuffed birds, etc. Well, Folks, with the exception of the airplane wheels, my cellar has all those items and then some. Like two steamer trunks (one belonged to my father when he came from Italy and the other was my mother's when she came to America from Ireland). There is also an old wooden ice box in the cellar and our first easy washer, 15 inch tires that belonged to an old Essex. Also, there are empty coffee cans, peanut butter jars and hundreds of framed portraits etc. I want to throw everything out but Kathy happens to be the President of the "Pack Rats of America."

"Dreamboat" is Kelly Lindstrom. Super Star is Stephen Qualey.
